There was, however, furthermore, suf-ficient reason to believe that the same speculative captains who conducted last week's bull movement in the stock market in the face of the agricultural outledk, as it stood then, have diverted their energies to the grain market, where they are waging as aggressive a bull campaign as they did last week in the market for securities.

Undertone One of Stubborn Resistance to Any Decline.

NEW YORK, April 23 .- A small Hous ton estimate and buying by Liverpoel and spot houses caused a moderate rise in cotton today. April notices to the amount % of about 10,000 hales, issued presumably by Wall Street houses, are understood to have been stopped by Greek and Philadelphia interests.

The weather on the whole, was good, and especially east of the Mississsippi, and the Government weekly report in detail reads favorably. But bulls were en-couraged by the diminished movement to Houston, the steady demand from prominent interests, and the Liverpool and Manchester advices—Liverpool's spot sales being 12,000 bales, and Lancashire reporting a good trade at firm prices. The speculation shows a full in the ex-citement, but very many regard the un-dertone as firm, and although weather conditions are new favorable the season

There was a slight reaction before the close, partly on a relatively large New Orleans estimate and pretty liberal port recelpts, as well as some decrease in the interior shipments and the port exports. It is argued, too, that the lower price of silver of late must have some effect on trade with China and Japan. But the undertone of the market was one of stubborn resistance to anything in the shape of a material decline. May notices are due on Friday and are expected to be numerous, but it is believed that they will be stopped by importan New York, Philadelphia, and Greek in-
